Small Business Paycheck Protection Program (PPP): Frequently Asked Questions

These FAQs are based on an analysis of the language in the statute and subsequent guidance from the Small Business Administration (SBA). As the SBA rolls out this new program, the agency will likely issue further guidance, which may change the way that we believe, at this time, the program will work based on only the language of the law without much further context. Therefore, the forthcoming guidance or regulations from the SBA should be relied upon and any examples herein should be reviewed with caution. It is critical to consult with your accountant on your specific financial situation and how the PPP might impact it.

Note that the PPP contemplates two steps: obtaining a loan and obtaining forgiveness of said loan. Accordingly, this FAQ document is divided into two sections: “PPP Loans” and “Loan Forgiveness.”

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PPP Loans

APPLICATION AND LOAN TERMS/MECANICS
- How do I apply?
- What do I need to fill out to apply and where?
- What documents will I need to gather to submit with the PPP application?
- What is my interest rate?
- When will I owe back any un-forgiven balance on the loan?
- When do I need to start paying interest on my loan?
- What collateral will I need for the PPP loan?
- Do I need to personally guarantee this loan?
- When can I apply?
- How long do I have to decide whether to apply for a loan?
- Will I need to put up collateral? And how much does the loan cost to process?

ELIGIBILITY
- Who qualifies?
- But what about the amount of revenue my business generates? If I generate over a certain annual amount, doesn’t that disqualify me from working with the SBA?
- How is an “employee” defined for purposes of the PPP?
- What about independent contractors? Are they “employees”?
- Should I count employees at any affiliated entities?

Disclaimer: The information included in this document is included only for informational purposes and is only interpretation made based on available information that is subject to change. The information should not be construed as legal or tax advice, nor does Hart Health Strategies Inc. provide legal or tax advice in any context. Any action taken related to these matters should only be done in conjunction with the appropriate legal and/or other professional advice.
LOAN AMOUNT
What’s the loan amount?

ALLOWED USES OF LOAN PROCEEDS
What can I use the loan proceeds for?
What can’t I use the loan proceeds for?
How are “payroll costs” defined for purposes of the PPP?
Tell me more about the $100,000 salary limitation – how would this work?
What happens if I don’t apply for forgiveness or if my forgiveness request is denied? This may happen if I need to lay off people after all, or if I already had to lay off people before the bill passed and cannot hire them back.
When will I owe the first payment on un-forgiven loan amounts?
Can I use the loan to pay for supplies, such as Part B medicines?
Can I use the loan to make payments on leased or mortgaged medical equipment?
Will there be auditing of the loans in the future?

THE PPP AND OTHER SBA RELIEF
How many loans can I take out under the PPP?
The SBA offers more loans than just the PPP loans. How does the PPP interact with other SBA products that might help me at this time?

Loan Forgiveness
I saw that I can only be forgiven for certain expenses within an eight-week time period. When does the clock start running on that eight weeks?
Will I know at the time I take out the loan that I can have the entire amount forgiven? How can I have certainty on that?
Where do I apply for loan forgiveness? And what are the mechanics?
What documentation will I need for my forgiveness application?
Can I take the loan and use it only to pay my lease and utilities?
What exactly are the requirements for forgiveness in terms of retaining staff and salary levels?
Could I use the loan to re-hire people?
How does the PPP interact with the payroll tax relief provisions created in the same law and in the Families First Coronavirus Response Act (FFCRA)?

Additional Resources
PPP Loans
APPLICATION AND LOAN TERMS/MECHANICS

How do I apply?
You can apply through any existing SBA 7(a) lender or through any federally insured depository institution, federally insured credit union, and Farm Credit System institution that is participating. Other regulated lenders will be available to make these loans once they are approved and enrolled in the program. You should consult with your local lender as to whether it is participating. All loans will have the same terms regardless of lender or borrower. A list of participating lenders as well as additional information and full terms can be found at www.sba.gov.

What do I need to fill out to apply and where?
You will need to complete the Paycheck Protection Program loan application and submit the application with the required documentation to an approved lender that is available to process your application by June 30, 2020. This will include a good faith certification that the uncertainty of current economic conditions makes the loan necessary to support ongoing operations. You must further certify that funds will be used to maintain payroll and pay mortgage interest, lease, and utility payments. Finally, you must certify that you do not have any duplicative applications.

What documents will I need to gather to submit with the PPP application?
Talk to your lender about specific loan documentation. Here is a list of items you may be asked to provide:

- Company Information
  - Proof of existence of the company, including articles of incorporation, operating agreements, and proof of existence from the applicable state’s Secretary of State
  - Existing notes and debts of the company

- Payroll
  - Payroll reports from 2/15/20 to 6/30/20, as well as the amount paid from 4/1/19 to the date of the loan
  - Form 941’s for 6/30/19, 9/30/19. 12/31/19, and 3/31/20
  - Payments made to independent contractors from 2/15/20 to 6/30/20, including names, SSN/EIN, and gross pay, as well as the amount paid from 4/1/19 to the date of the loan

- Benefits
  - Health care benefits paid by the company from 2/15/20 to 6/30/20, as well as the amount paid from 4/1/19 to the date of the loan
  - Unemployment Tax Returns for 6/30/19, 9/30/19. 12/31/19, and 3/31/20, showing each individual’s compensation
  - Retirement plan summary including plan audits and Form 5500 from the most recent tax year

- Rent & Utilities
  - Current lease agreements
  - Recent utility bills from 2/15/20 through 6/30/20

What is my interest rate?
The interest rate will be 1%.

When will I owe back any un-forgiven balance on the loan?
In two years. There are no prepayment penalties or fees, should you be able and willing to pay it back before then.
When do I need to start paying interest on my loan?
All payments are deferred for 6 months; however, interest will continue to accrue over this period.

What collateral will I need for the PPP loan?
None. No collateral is required.

Do I need to personally guarantee this loan?
No. There is no personal guarantee requirement. Of course, if an applicant fraudulently misrepresents themselves or their business or if the proceeds are used for fraudulent purposes, the U.S. government will pursue criminal charges.

When can I apply?
According to recent SBA guidance, starting April 3, 2020, small businesses and sole proprietorships can apply. Starting April 10, 2020, independent contractors and self-employed individuals can apply. The SBA encourages eligible entities to apply as quickly as possible due to the funding cap.

How long do I have to decide whether to apply for a loan?
The loans are unavailable after June 30, 2020. This spend-down may happen long before June 30, given the severity of the economic crisis. Thus, the SBA encourages eligible entities to apply quickly.

Will I need to put up collateral? And how much does the loan cost to process?
Fees are waived and the usual SBA requirement that a small business cannot get credit elsewhere does not apply. The usual personal guarantee requirement is waived, and no collateral will be required.

ELIGIBILITY
Who qualifies?
The intent is to qualify a broad range of employers. If you are a for-profit business with under 500 employees within the United States, you qualify.

If you have over 500 employees within the United States, it gets trickier. Employers in the “Accommodation and Food Services” industry can have more than 500 employees within the United States, provided they do not have more than 500 employees per U.S. location. Additionally, businesses in certain industries can have more than 500 employees within the United States if they meet applicable SBA employee-based size standards for those industries (click HERE for additional detail).

Subject to certain documentation requirements, individuals who are self-employed, independent contractors, or sole proprietors are eligible as well. See the SBA interim final rule (IFR) for more information on the qualifications and calculations for these entities.

As for nonprofits, only 501(c)(3) nonprofits are eligible.

But what about the amount of revenue my business generates? If I generate over a certain annual amount, doesn’t that disqualify me from working with the SBA?
While this may remain a limiting requirement for other SBA loan products, for purposes of the PPP, your revenue amount is irrelevant. In describing the 500-employee limit, the law states that these employers are eligible “in addition to small business concerns[,]” (Emphasis added.)
How is an “employee” defined for purposes of the PPP?

There are two definitions of “employee” at play in the PPP: one for purposes of determining loan eligibility and another for purposes of determining loan forgiveness. The Treasury FAQ provides as follows:

- For purposes of loan eligibility, the CARES Act defines the term employee to include “individuals employed on a full-time, part-time, or other basis.” In other words, to determine whether an entity is under the 500-employee threshold, it must calculate the total number of employees, including part-time employees.

- For purposes of loan forgiveness, the CARES Act uses the term “full-time equivalent employees” to determine whether and how much the loan forgiveness amount will be reduced in the event of layoffs. In its IFR on forgiveness, the SBA defines a “full-time equivalent employee” as an employee who works 40 hours or more, on average, each week. See below for additional detail on the loan forgiveness process.

What about independent contractors? Are they “employees”?

With respect to independent contractors, the SBA interim final rule states the following:

Do independent contractors count as employees for purposes of PPP loan calculations?

No, independent contractors have the ability to apply for a PPP loan on their own so they do not count for purposes of a borrower’s PPP loan calculation.

On April 14, the SBA issued an interim final rule (IFR) related to independent contractors applying for the PPP loan. The rule clarifies how to make certain calculations under the PPP loan, among other items.

Should I count employees at any affiliated entities to determine whether I am eligible?

Yes. To help determine whether an entity is affiliated to any others, the SBA has posted information regarding the affiliation rules for the PPP here.

Note that, for the PPP, the SBA’s affiliation standards are waived for small businesses (1) in the hotel and food services industries (click HERE for NAICS code 72 to confirm); or (2) that are franchises in the SBA’s Franchise Directory (click HERE to check); or (3) that receive financial assistance from small business investment companies licensed by the SBA.

Loan Amount

What’s the loan amount?

The amount would be the lesser of: (1) 2.5 times your average monthly payroll or (2) $10 million. For example, assuming no previous SBA loans for the same period or for the same purposes, if a business has a $300,000 monthly payroll, the loan amount would be $750,000.

Note: If you have an Economic Injury Disaster Loan (EIDL) from between January 31, 2020 and April 3, 2020, then special rules apply. If your EIDL loan was not used for payroll costs, it does not affect your eligibility for a PPP loan. If your EIDL loan was used for payroll costs, your PPP loan must be used to refinance your EIDL loan.

Allowed Uses of Loan Proceeds

What can I use the loan proceeds for?

During the covered period, the recipient may use the loan for:

- Payroll costs (see below)
• Costs related to the continuation of group health care benefits during periods of paid sick, medical, or family leave, and insurance premiums
• Interest on any mortgage obligation (but not any principal payment) on obligations, incurred before February 15, 2020
• Rent, under lease agreements in force before February 15, 2020
• Utilities, for which service began before February 15, 2020
• Refinancing of certain EIDL loans

What can’t I use the loan proceeds for?
With regard to what the loan can be used for, the law specifically allows certain business costs and specifically disallows others. However, there is a vast world of business expenses that are not listed one way or another. At this time, until or unless the SBA states differently, it would be prudent to only use loan proceeds for the “allowed uses” specifically stated in the law.

That said, the law specifically disallows:
• Compensation of an individual above $100,000 annually (pro-rated for the covered period),
• Taxes imposed or withheld under IRC Chapters 21, 22, or 24,
• Any compensation of an employee with a principal place of residence outside the U.S., and
• Any sick or family leave for which a credit is allowed under the Families First Coronavirus Response Act.

How are “payroll costs” defined for purposes of the PPP?
“Payroll costs” are broadly defined, as including:
• A salary, wage, commission, tips, or similar compensation (capped at $100,000 on an annualized basis for each employee),
• Employment costs, such as
  o Costs for vacation; parental, family, medical or sick leave payment,
  o Dismissal or separation allowance, o Payments for an employer’s group health benefits (including premiums), and o Payment for retirement benefits, and
• Payment of State or local tax assessments on employee compensation.

For a sole proprietor or independent contractor: payment that is a wage, commission, income, net earnings from self-employment, or similar compensation, with a cap of $100,000 in one year (pro-rated for the covered period).

Tell me more about the $100,000 salary limitation – how would this work?
This is not an all-or-nothing situation. It does not mean that the loan cannot be requested for anything related to employees in the United States making over $100,000. Rather, for employees in the United States making over $100,000, you are only allowed to request loan proceeds on the first $100,000 of their salary, pro-rated for the covered period.

What happens if I don’t apply for forgiveness or if my forgiveness request is denied? This may happen if I need to lay off people after all, or if I already had to lay off people before the bill passed and cannot hire them back.
Any un-forgiven loan balance will roll over into a loan, and SBA guidance indicates that the interest will be 1%, with a maturity in 2 years. Prepayment penalties are prohibited. Participating banks have no discretion to change these terms.
When will I owe the first payment on un-forgiven loan amounts?
Lenders are required to provide complete payment deferment relief for “impacted borrowers” for six months. Impacted borrowers are presumed to have been impacted adversely by COVID-19, and all recipients are presumed to be “impacted borrowers.”

Can I use the loan to pay for supplies, such as Part B medicines?
With regard to what the loan can be requested for, the law specifically allows certain business costs and specifically disallows others. However, there is a vast range of business expenses that are not listed one way or another, and supplies is one of them. At this time, until or unless the SBA states differently, it would be prudent to only use loan proceeds for the “allowed uses” specifically stated in the law. This means you should avoid using loan proceeds for supplies at this time, even if you don’t apply for forgiveness, because supplies are not listed in the law as an “allowed use.” It could be possible that Congress expands “allowed uses” via future legislation.

Can I use the loan to make payments on leased or mortgaged medical equipment?
This is tricky. The law lists “rent (including rent under a lease agreement)” as an allowed use, but it seems like the intent was to limit this to rent on real property. This may be clarified further by the SBA.

With regard to mortgages, the law limits the allowed use to “payments of interest” and specifically disallows prepayment of or payment of principal. Thus, in no event can the loan proceeds be used for anything other than interest payments. With regard to whether this applies only to real property, in the part of the law that discusses loan forgiveness, the law specifically states that a mortgage in this context would include a mortgage “on real or personal property.”

Thus, at this time, the best answer seems to be: You should not use the loan proceeds to pay for rented or leased equipment, but you could use it to pay for interest on mortgaged equipment. Again, this is an interpretation of statutory language and may be subject to change by the SBA in further guidance as they roll out the loans.

Also, keep in mind, the SBA guidance notes that, it is anticipated that not more than 25% of the forgiven amount may be for non-payroll costs. There may be future legislation enacted by Congress to undo this requirement.

Will there be auditing of the loans in the future?
Given the amount of funds being released, it is highly likely that there will be oversight of the loan program in some form. On April 28, Treasury Secretary Mnuchin and Small Business Administrator Carranza issued a joint press release, noting the following: “To further ensure PPP loans are limited to eligible borrowers, the SBA has decided, in consultation with the Department of the Treasury, that it will review all loans in excess of $2 million, in addition to other loans as appropriate, following the lender’s submission of the borrower’s loan forgiveness application. Regulatory guidance implementing this procedure will be forthcoming.”

With regard to loans under $2 million, Treasury has provided: “Any borrower that, together with its affiliates, received PPP loans with an original principal amount of less than $2 million will be deemed to have made the required certification concerning the necessity of the loan request in good faith.” (See question 46 in the FAQ.)

THE PPP AND OTHER SBA RELIEF
How many loans can I take out under the PPP?
One.
The SBA offers more loans than just the PPP loans. How does the PPP interact with other SBA products that might help me at this time?

You may opt to take out other loans through the SBA, including the EIDL and 7(a) programs. If you have an Economic Injury Disaster Loan from between January 31, 2020 and April 3, 2020, then special rules apply. If your EIDL loan was not used for payroll costs, it does not affect your eligibility for a PPP loan. If your EIDL loan was used for payroll costs, your PPP loan must be used to refinance your EIDL loan. Proceeds from any advance up to $10,000 on the EIDL loan will be deducted from the loan forgiveness amount on the PPP loan.

Loan Forgiveness

I saw that I can only be forgiven for certain expenses within an eight-week time period. When does the clock start running on that eight weeks?

A borrower can be forgiven for an eight-week period (assuming it spends the loan proceeds on allowed uses), starting on the date that the loan originates. Since payroll cycles may not align neatly with the eight-week period eligible for forgiveness, the IFR on forgiveness provides flexibility to borrowers with bi-weekly or more frequent payroll cycles, by allowing them to use an alternative payroll covered period. Similarly, SBA has clarified that certain nonpayroll costs incurred during the eight weeks but paid by the next regular billing date will still be eligible for forgiveness even if that billing date falls outside the covered period.

Note that recent SBA guidance has noted that at least 75% of the forgiven amount must have been used for payroll. Again, future legislation may change both of these aspects.

Will I know at the time I take out the loan that I can have the entire amount forgiven? How can I have certainty on that?

You won’t know at the time you take the loan exactly what portion will be forgiven, and this is understandably concerning to business owners at a time of steeply declining revenues. Whatever balance is not forgiven will roll over into a two-year loan at 1% interest.

Where do I apply for loan forgiveness? And what are the mechanics?

To receive loan forgiveness, a borrower must submit a Loan Forgiveness Application to its lender. The lender has 60 days from receipt of a complete application to review it and issue a decision to SBA. If the lender determines that the borrower should receive forgiveness of some or all of the amount applied for, it will request payment from SBA at the same time it issues its decision to SBA. Within 90 days of the lender issuing its decision to SBA, the SBA will remit the forgiveness amount to the lender plus any interest accrued through the date of payment. Amounts forgiven shall be considered “canceled indebtedness.” Meaning, the forgiven amount essentially “disappears” from your PPP loan. The lender is responsible for notifying the borrower of the forgiveness amount and, as noted above, any un-forgiven balance must be repaid by the borrower within two years.

Note that, if the borrower received an EIDL Advance, SBA will deduct this amount from the forgiveness amount remitted to the lender.

In its IFR on forgiveness, SBA clarifies that this general process “applies only to loan forgiveness applications that are not reviewed by SBA prior to the lender’s decision on the forgiveness application. In a separate interim final rule on SBA Loan Review Procedures and Related Borrower and Lender Responsibilities, SBA will describe its procedures for reviewing PPP loan applications and loan forgiveness applications.” Note that SBA/Treasury have announced they will audit any loans over $2 million upon receipt of a forgiveness request, and they may audit additional loans, including loans with lower amounts, as they see fit within their broad discretion to administer the PPP.
For additional information, please consult the standard application for loan forgiveness, which may be accessed here. Treasury and SBA have provided additional detail on the forgiveness process here as well.

What documentation will I need for my forgiveness application?
The loan forgiveness application form specifies which documents will be needed: see page 10 of the application form to determine what documentation you must submit to your lender with your forgiveness application, what documentation you must maintain and make available upon request, and what documentation you may voluntarily submit with your application. A borrower cannot receive forgiveness without submission of the required documentation.

Can I take the loan and use it only to pay my lease and utilities?
You can use the loan proceeds for these purposes only, since they are “allowed uses” in the law, but in that case the loan won’t be forgiven. The forgiveness is tied to keeping your payroll, as described in more detail elsewhere in this document. Congress may change this requirement with subsequent legislation.

What exactly are the requirements for forgiveness in terms of retaining staff and salary levels?
As of now, at least 75% of the forgiven amount must have been used for payroll. Additionally, the amount of forgiveness is reduced based on a formula for business owners who have laid off employees or reduced wages over a certain amount, as detailed on the forgiveness application form.

There is an opportunity for business owners to re-hire people or re-instate wages by June 30 without a commensurate reduction in the amount of forgiveness. Treasury has clarified that there will be no reduction in forgiveness for employees who are fired for cause, who voluntarily resign, or who voluntarily request a schedule reduction. The SBA has also clarified that there will be no reduction in forgiveness for employees who reject an offer of re-hiring, provided the employer follows the process outlined on page 14 of the IFR on forgiveness. Additionally, to avoid a “double penalty,” SBA has clarified that the salary/wage reduction in forgiveness applies only to the portion of the decline in employee salary and wages that is not attributable to the FTE reduction.

Could I use the loan to re-hire people?
The congressional staff who wrote the law understood that many employers had already let go of staff before the law was enacted, due to the overnight economic blow of COVID-19. Thus, they included an opportunity to restore your ability to get loan forgiveness for rehires or increasing the salary of an employee. The statute provides borrowers until June 30, 2020 to restore full-time employment and salary levels for any changes made between February 15, 2020 and April 26, 2020.

Note that the SBA has clarified that there will be no reduction in forgiveness for employees who are fired for cause, who voluntarily resign, or who voluntarily request a schedule reduction. The SBA has also clarified that there will be no reduction in forgiveness for employees who reject an offer of re-hiring, provided the employer follows the process outlined on page 14 of the IFR on forgiveness. Further, the SBA has clarified that, as long as employees are rehired or wages are restored, on or before June 30, then any penalties for reductions in salary and staff are eliminated.

How does the PPP interact with the payroll tax relief provisions created in the same law and in the Families First Coronavirus Response Act (FFCRA)?
The CARES Act and FFCRA include several tax relief provisions in addition to the small business loan relief described above. Each of these provisions interacts with the PPP and you should consult with your tax advisor before pursuing any of these options.
The main three tax provisions related to employers are:

- Payroll tax deferral, created by section 2302 of CARES Act
- Employee Retention Credit, created by section 2301 of CARES
- Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) credit, created in 2017, expanded by FFCRA to cover 100% of eligible COVID-related paid leave

The Employee Retention Credit is disallowed if a loan is received under the PPP, whether forgiven or not.

With regard to payroll tax deferral, the IRS has provided that: “Employers who have received a PPP loan may defer deposit and payment of the employer’s share of Social Security tax that otherwise would be required to be made beginning on March 27, 2020, through the date the lender issues a decision to forgive the loan in accordance with paragraph (g) of section 1106 of the CARES Act, without incurring failure to deposit and failure to pay penalties. Once an employer receives a decision from its lender that its PPP loan is forgiven, the employer is no longer eligible to defer deposit and payment of the employer’s share of Social Security tax due after that date. However, the amount of the deposit and payment of the employer’s share of Social Security tax that was deferred through the date that the PPP loan is forgiven continues to be deferred and will be due on the "applicable dates," as described in FAQs 7 and 8.” (See question 4 here.)

Per the IRS, “deferred deposits of the employer’s share of Social Security tax must be deposited by the following dates (referred to as the “applicable dates”) to be treated as timely (and avoid a failure to deposit penalty):

1. On December 31, 2021, 50 percent of the deferred amount; and
2. On December 31, 2022, the remaining amount.”

Additional Resources

- Treasury/SBA IFR on Loan Forgiveness
- Treasury’s Loan Forgiveness Application
- Small Business Administration PPP information
- PPP Borrower Application Form
- SBA Interim Final Rule (related to initial rollout)
- SBA Interim Final Rule (related to affiliations)
- SBA Interim Final Rule (related to self-employed entities)
- SBA Interim Final Rule (related to certain hospitals and private equity)
- SBA Interim Final Rule (related to seasonal employees)
- SBA Interim Final Rule (related to loan disbursements)
- SBA Interim Final Rule (related to corporate groups and non-bank and non-insured depository institution lenders)
- How to Calculate Loan Amounts
- IRS PPP Overview
- IRS PPP Borrower Information
- IRS PPP Lender Information
- IRS FAQ (updated regularly)
- Find an eligible lender
- U.S. Chamber of Commerce information on the PPP
- NFIB: comparison of EIDL and PPP
- Guidance on Whole Loan Sales
- SBA PPP report (approvals through 4/16)
- SBA PPP report (approvals through 5/1)
- SBA PPP report (approvals through 5/23)