HELP Advances Drug Pricing Package

The Senate Health, Education, Labor and Pensions (HELP) Committee advanced four legislative proposals to strengthen generic drug competition and address pharmacy benefit manager (PBM) practices last week. The bills passed out of committee include:

- The RARE Act (S. 1214), to codify that the scope of orphan drug exclusivity aligns with the approved use or indication of an orphan drug, rather than the disease or condition for which the drug received orphan drug designation.
- The Ensuring Timely Access to Generics Act of 2023 (S. 1067), which would permit the Food and Drug Administration to deny a citizen petition submitted with the primary purpose of delaying the approval of a follow-on generic or biosimilar application, or if the petition does not raise valid scientific or regulatory issues.
- The Expanding Access to Low-Cost Generics Act of 2023 (S. 1114), which aims to prevent a practice known as generic “parking” by allowing generic companies that are not first filers to enter the market if the first filer who otherwise received 180-day exclusivity has failed to come to market by 33 months since the date of submission of the application when there is another applicant who is otherwise ready to market their product.
- The Pharmacy Benefit Manager Reform Act (S. 1339), to increase oversight and transparency of entities that provide pharmacy benefit management services on behalf of group health plans and health insurance coverage. The bill would ban spread pricing and require PBMs to pass through all manufacturer rebates to insurance plans. The panel also adopted seven amendments to S. 1339, including an amendment to direct the Department of Labor to study PBMs.

Lawmakers will now work to compile a drug pricing package comprised of related legislation from the Senate Commerce, Judiciary, and Finance committees and potentially a measure to lower Americans’ out-of-pocket costs for insulin.

Ways and Means Republicans Push to Strengthen CMMI Oversight

The House Ways and Means Subcommittee on Health convened a hearing last week to consider policies that inhibit innovation and patient access. During the hearing Republicans called for increased oversight of the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation (CMMI), criticizing a recent CMMI proposal to reduce Medicare reimbursement for drugs cleared via the Food and Drug Administration's accelerated approval process. The agency believes the policy would incentivize manufacturers to complete confirmatory trials in a timelier manner, but Chairman Jason Smith (R-Mo.) argued that it would slow innovation and reduce access to life-saving therapies. Rep. Vern Buchanan (R-Fla.) has stated plans to introduce legislation on the issue. Lawmakers also questioned CMMI's ability to evaluate new payment and service delivery models, highlighting that only six of the more than 50 models tested since the creation of CMMI have resulted in statistically significant savings.

HELP Holds Health Care Workforce Roundtable

The Senate Health, Education, Labor and Pensions (HELP) Committee convened a field roundtable last week to discuss health care provider shortages and ways to diversify the medical workforce. The event was held at Morehouse School of Medicine in Atlanta and featured leaders from Historically Black Colleges and Universities, who argued that physician shortages are particularly acute in minority communities and have an adverse impact on health outcomes. Witnesses expressed support for the Resident Physician Shortage Reduction Act (S. 1302/H.R. 2389), which would increase the number of Medicare-supported graduation medical education positions. Panelists also asked lawmakers to provide funding to strengthen the R&D infrastructure of academic health sciences centers at historically Black graduate institutions, and to address student debt and fair pay for medical residents.

IL Delegation Pushes for ARPA-H Hub

Sens. Tammy Duckworth (D-Ill.) and Dick Durbin (D-Ill.) have sent a letter to administration officials on behalf of the Illinois congressional delegation expressing support for the placement of an Advanced Research Projects Agency for Health (ARPA-H) hub in the Chicago area. The new biomedical innovation agency will be organized in a hub-and-spoke model comprised of three main hubs, with the first hub located in the Washington, D.C. area. The lawmakers argue "Chicago's robust and diverse distribution networks, combined with an impressive and talented workforce, helps explain why the region has become home to a strong manufacturing sector, particularly pharmaceuticals and medical equipment manufacturing."

Sen. Feinstein Returns to Washington

Sen. Dianne Feinstein (D-Calif.), 89, returned to D.C. last week for the first time since February when she was diagnosed with shingles and subsequently hospitalized. While her doctors have advised her to work on a lighter schedule now that she has returned to the Capitol, Feinstein's presence restores Democrats' one-seat advantage in the full chamber and their majority on the Judiciary Committee. Feinstein has come under criticism in recent weeks because of the impact of her extended absence on the ability of the Judiciary Committee to advance Biden administration nominees. With her return, the Judiciary Committee advanced three judicial nominees for consideration by the full Senate. Reps. Ro Khanna (D-Calif.), Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (D-N.Y.), Rashida Tlaib (D-Mich.) and Dean Phillips (D-Minn.) previously called on her to resign, citing her inability to carry out her responsibilities as a senator. Feinstein, who is still experiencing some side effects from the shingles virus, announced earlier this year that she would not seek a sixth term in the Senate in 2024.
